

Abstract

The invention relates to a security system 100, having a camera 3 for 5 taking pictures of objects. From chronologically successive pictures taken by the camera 3, a gray variance [variant term] of the pixels is derived, which is compared with a threshold value that is dependent on the gray value. This improves the recognition accuracy of the security system 100.

10 (Fig. 4)